It is exhausting and simultaneously magical. We are both overwhelmed and filled with joy. Finding ways to entertain the kids that allows us to have a little downtime are an absolute must. This guide is packed with ideas for entertaining kids from inside our homes. Best of luck!

2 OBIE

OBIE is an interactive projection system that brings games and activities to life anywhere in your house. Homeschooling and special game time will never be the same because, with Obie, you can play hundreds of games on any surface including tables, walls, and floors. It's not your typical video game- your kids can play together or individually in an active way by hitting targets on the wall, bouncing on the floor, or playing a game on the surface of your table. All of the games on Obie are educational and fun, making your home into a fun, interactive classroom that will get your child excited to learn.

Obie has four different modes- floor, table, wall, and avatar mode. It has hundreds of different interactive games and it doesn't require much upkeep or maintenance. You can control the device and the play with the app which is available on iOS or Android devices. You won't find the games on Obie anywhere else either- they are made just for Obie and new games are released every month. Your child will have so much fun playing with this interactive gaming system, and it will keep them up off the couch while doing it!

3 ROLLPLAY NIGHTHAWK

This cool looking ride is anything but a scooter. The Nighthawk will have your child entertained for hours on end. And better yet? They'll be able to spend that time outside. The Nighthawk is a ride-on that can reach speeds of up to 6 mph, giving your child the thrill of speed without being dangerous. The unique steering technique and the accelerator and brake pedals allow the rider to control the speed and the maneuverability of the Nighthawk, so they are always in complete control.

This super cool ride-on will give your child plenty of time outside. In fact, they probably won't want to come back in! The speed, the swift steering, and the fun they will have learning and playing with the Nighthawk will have them begging to go outside instead of sitting on their devices.
