Shriner's Hospital for Children Brings Hope to Thousands of Families Around the World

Shriners Hospital for Children is a state-of-the-art medical facility specializing in childhood injuries and illness. But the organization believes that medical attention is just one aspect of the recovery process. A focus on love, attention, and playtime are seen as essential to a child's wellbeing and are prioritized as highly as the most modern advances in medical science.

Shriners Hospital Is Tasked with Creating an Engaging Environment for Children to Recover. But That Isn't Without It's Difficulties

Interactive play for all

Many of the children at Shriners have varying degrees of physical ability. This means finding a form of play that's versatile enough to meet the needs of the many, not the few.

Social stimulation

For children, traditional bed rest and medical treatment is only part of their recovery process. Social interaction also imperative, which is why Shriners is constantly looking for ways to bring children together to support the healing process.

Built to last

At the Shriners Hospital in Springfield, the waiting area will see about 14,000 outpatient visits every year. That kind of traffic means finding a playtime solution that can stand up to all that activity and still be going strong the year after.

Shriner's Springfield Branch Installs BEAM as Primary Waiting Room Attraction to Advance Family-Focused Customer Experience

Shriners' Springfield branch sees hundreds of families come and go through its waiting room every year. BEAM's lack of parts and pieces make it a perfect fit for this high-traffic area. And thanks to BEAM's socially engaging and educational games, patients had a chance to work in teams and meet new friends.

Final Result

Shriners hospital lived up to its reputation as a pediatric care facility that wants the ultimate best for its children.

"We strive to provide our patients and families with an exceptional customer experience when they come to the hospital. The Beam has been helpful in creating a child-friendly environment and in motivating kids to move despite any limitations they may face."
